1. Some 500 meters west of the Jebel-Ciacova road, between kilometer 1.3 and 2 there is a Soviet army camp consisting of 28 wooden barracks with tar paper roofs. The barracks are in four rows of seven each; they are about 60 x 15 meters in size. The whole area is surrounded by barbed wire.

3. The Jebel railroad station is about 1 kilometer east of the camp. Opposite the station is a large, isolated building, formerly the Reiser Inn. This building is now surrounded by barbed wire and guarded by a Soviet post whose soldiers wear red shoulder tabs with black insignia. Local residents say this is an equipment depot.
